

Dan Oblinger is the sole proprietor of Leadercraft, a private company devoted to excellence in speaking and corporate training. Dan is a refreshingly unique voice in corporate retreats and keynotes. He is a father, husband, philosopher, and lawman. He has been successful in his professional life as a hostage negotiator, undercover investigator, HR consultant, chicken farmer, drug recognition expert, ditch digger, grocery bagger, onion ring maker, and beat cop. Oblinger has used his unique experiences and high energy humor to educate national audiences since 2008. Oblinger has carved out a niche as a leading expert in listening and negotiating for business leaders, presenting to audiences in all industries and all across the country on these critical topics related to helping everyone to become “authentic leaders and lovers”.