Doug is a native of Omaha, Nebraska and attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln where he earned a B.S. degree in Civil Engineering. Shortly after earning his degree he moved to the Kansas City area to begin a career in the engineering consulting industry with an emphasis on the environment. In the early 1990s his focus turned to the solid waste management industry where he has remained actively involved to this day while broadening his horizons to include many other facets of environmental permitting and compliance. While working within the consulting arena he also completed an MBA program at the University of Kansas to round out his business acumen. He is a licensed professional engineer in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, and Illinois and is active in several professional groups including SWANA, ASCE, AWMA, MWCC, and ACEC of Kansas where he currently serves on the Board of Directors. Doug also serves as a Senior Vice President for SCS Aquaterra in its Overland Park office and also is a member of the SCS Board of Directors. He lives in Overland Park with his wife Susan and their three children – Colin, Dylan, and Karlee.
