I grew up in the small town of Lenora in northwest Kansas. After high school, I went to Ft. Hays State for two years and then transferred to Kansas State where I received a BS in Civil Engineering. Upon graduation, I went to work for Schwab-Eaton in our Manhattan office. After five years in the consulting field, I had an opportunity to work in the utility construction business and moved to the Denver, Colorado area. After a year and a half in Denver, my wife and I decided we would prefer to raise a family in Kansas so we moved back to Manhattan and I again went to work at Schwab-Eaton. In 2008, we moved once again to Beloit continuing to work for Schwab-Eaton. During my career, I have been involved in road and bridge construction inspection projects, water and wastewater design, site development, and project management for a wide variety of municipal and private clients. I am currently the office manager for our Beloit, Kansas office and am an associate within the firm.

I live about 5 miles outside of Beloit in the country with my wife, Angie, two kids, Jacob (8) and Abby (6), and yellow lab, Bruno. I enjoy spending time with my family, helping coach my kids' sports teams, all types of hunting, fishing, old cars, antique firearms, watching sports (especially K-State), listening to music and working on a seemingly never ending supply of home improvement projects.
